Call for ACTIP Fellowship award applications 2023

ACTIP is an independent non-profit association of European companies and institutions engaged in the industrial use of advanced cell technology for research, development and/or production of biotherapeutics. Its main objectives are to bring cell technology experts together for networking, keeping up to date on cutting-edge developments and focus on technological and applied-oriented challenges for the industrial use of cell technology. ACTIP's members meet twice a year at a plenary scientific meeting. These informal meetings feature high-level presentations on selected topics of mutual interest, with invited speakers from industry, academia, own member companies, small and medium-sized enterprises and regulatory agencies.

Through the Fellowship award ACTIP opens these industrial scientific meetings to talented early career scientists working on a research project in biomanufacturing or related activity (e.g., bioprocesses, expression systems, cell line development, gene and cell therapies, bioassays, bioinformatics). The award offers them the opportunity to present their research to the ACTIP community. Over the years this has proven to be an excellent way to interact with industry experts and expand professional networks on a European scale.

How to apply

Applicants should be younger than 35 years of age, educated to at least degree level in one of the disciplines underlying biomanufacturing and based in Europe. The applicant should apply for the award using the application form available on the ACTIP website (<https://www.actip.org>). An application should be accompanied by a recent Curriculum Vitae (CV) with full contact details.

Both the completed application form and CV should be sent to:

Dr. Erwin van Vliet, ACTIP Executive Secretary, E-mail: exec.secr@actip.org

The Fellowship Award consists of all costs paid to attend and present your research at a two-day ACTIP meeting and a €1000 prize.

Timeline to apply

Fellowship award applications can be sent in from 25 January until 28 February 2023 (23:59 CET). Selected scientists will be notified by end of March 2023 and invited to an ACTIP meeting taking place in Autumn 2023 or Spring 2024. A shortlist of award winners and their projects will be published on the ACTIP website.

We look forward to receiving your applications!
