Connecting Industry Expertise

The Advanced Cell Technology Industrial Platform (ACTIP)

Call for ACTIP Fellowship award applications 2024

ACTIP is an independent non-profit association of European companies and institutions engaged in the industrial use of advanced cell technology for research, development and/or production of biotherapeutics. Its main objectives are to bring cell technology experts together for networking, stay up to date on cutting-edge developments and focus on technological and applied-oriented challenges for the industrial use of cell technology. ACTIP's members meet twice a year at a plenary scientific meeting. These informal meetings feature high-level presentations on selected topics of mutual interest, with invited speakers from industry, academia, member companies, small and medium-sized enterprises and regulatory agencies.

Through the Fellowship award ACTIP opens these industrial scientific meetings to talented early career scientists working on a research project in biomanufacturing or related activity (e.g., bioprocesses, expression systems, cell line development, gene and cell therapies, bioassays, bioinformatics). The award offers them the opportunity to present their research to the ACTIP community. Over the years, this has proven to be an excellent way to interact with industry experts and expand professional networks on a European scale.
